The new ranking system will be in place in the new academic year. The nomination period was revised from being nominated only in the Fall term to a term-based nomination period.

- An overview was given, and how to rank nominated individuals was discussed. Timelines were also discussed as well.

- Indigenous PhD program – A second pathway is developed where PhD candidates who have 7 years of Indigenous practice can practice with an Elder.

Addendum II
Commissioner Reports

Jaz (Equity Commissioner):

Margaret (International Student Commissioner):

- Contacting International students office
- Social media awareness of TGSA to some international students

Heather (Environmental Commissioner):

This past month I have been settling into the role, attending some committee meetings and trying to get a meeting with the Sustainability Office set up.

Update on Food Services Committee/Sustainability Committee:

- 1) Take out containers are increasing at Trent, even more than since September audits. Suggestions for improving this include trying trays in cafeteria's so students don't need takeout containers to stack their food. Also, the pop up travel mug/free coffee program which pushes for reusable travel mugs on campus (which will now be starting January).
- 2) Dining fees will significantly be increasing for students. The current program backfired, by trying to keep costs low, the majority of undergrads will not have enough money to get through the year. There are supports in place including grocery programs and also bursaries for food services on campus. Several students have been overheard in the cafeteria's stating they are only eating once or twice/day so they won't run out. So advised to keep an eye on undergraduate students for well being.

“The TCSA has a food pantry with dry, fresh and refrigerated foods. The TCSA has a “grocery assistance program” that students apply for and can receive vouchers to a grocery store. Bursaries may be available through Financial Aid. Food Services and the TCSA support an emergency food program. It is funded by students who donate left over dining plan funds. Students can access up to three $25 cards for use on campus. Cards are available through the College offices, Security, FPHL, Counselling, TrentU card Office.”

Update on TGSA events:

- 1) Will be running the Blind Book Date event with Egan this year again.
- 2) Also tentatively an apartment/balcony pollinator potting event come Spring, using old/repurposed containers.

Other:

- 1) A meeting with Shelley from the Sustainability Office is in the works, tentatively set for the week of Dec 19 th .
- 2) Will be researching my personal interest in reducing lab waste/increasing recycling which impacts graduate students directly, hoping Shelley can guide me on some current lab recycling parameters. A survey to graduate students on this matter may be helpful.
